INGREDIENTS

- 48 g ripe sourdough starter (100% hydration)
- 260 g water, room temperature
- 7 g kosher salt
- 330 g whole wheat flour
- Extra virgin olive oil, for greasing dough balls

2. Knead: knead the dough in the bowl by hand for 5 minutes. Cover and rest another 30 minutes.
3. Bulk Ferment: perform two sets of stretch-and-folds at 30-minute intervals. Let the dough rest until puffy and increased by about 1/3 in volume (2.5-4 hours total).
4. Form into Balls: divide the dough in half without degassing. Shape each portion into a tight ball with a bench scraper. Coat each with olive oil.
5. Proof: place each ball on parchment, cover loosely, and proof at room temperature about 1 hour until puffy, or refrigerate to use within a couple of days.
6. Preheat Oven: place a baking stone or steel on a rack in the top third of the oven. Preheat to 525°F (up to 550°F if possible).
7. Shape: dampen or flour your fingertips and press out the first dough ball on parchment, working from the center outward into a 12-inch circle.
8. Top: add sauce and toppings, avoiding over-topping. Slide the pizza (on its parchment) onto a peel, then onto the hot stone.
9. Bake: bake 10-12 minutes (6 minutes at 550°F) until the crust is browned to your liking. Cool slightly before slicing. Repeat for the second pizza.

NOTE

Use a whole wheat starter (a white flour starter also works). Choose hard red or hard white wheat; avoid soft, pastry, or ancient grains like einkorn. To freeze: coat dough balls in oil, wrap, and freeze; thaw overnight before baking.

INGREDIENTS

- 1½ cups granulated sugar (300 g), divided
- 4 large eggs
- 2 cups whole milk (473 ml)
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract (10 ml)

DIRECTIONS

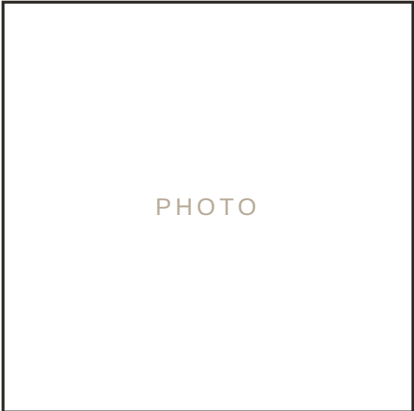

1. Preheat oven to 300°F (150°C). Place six 6-ounce ramekins in a 9x13-inch pan. Keep a kettle of water boiling.
2. Melt 1 cup (200g) sugar over medium-low heat until a golden caramel forms, about 10 minutes. Avoid stirring; watch closely to prevent burning.
3. Remove from heat immediately and quickly pour the caramel into the ramekins. If it hardens, reheat briefly until soft.
4. In a large bowl, beat the eggs with the remaining 1/2 cup (100g) sugar until creamy. Add the milk and vanilla; stir until combined.
5. Divide the custard evenly among the ramekins over the caramel. Cover each with foil and place in the 9x13-inch pan.
6. Fill the pan with boiling water halfway up the sides of the ramekins.
7. Bake at 300°F (150°C) for 40-60 minutes, until it jiggles slightly when shaken (internal temperature 175°F / 79°C).
8. Remove the ramekins from the water bath. Cool to room temperature, then refrigerate covered at least 6 hours, preferably overnight.
9. Run a knife around each ramekin's edge, place a plate on top, and invert to unmold. Serve immediately.

NOTE

A larger 8-9 inch mold can be used instead of individual ramekins. Bring eggs and milk to room temperature first, and don't skip the water bath — it's essential for a silky texture.

For canned full-fat coconut milk, use only a couple tablespoons diluted in water. Some prefer up to 3 tablespoons of chia seeds — whisk thoroughly for even absorption.

NAME OF DISH: Homemade Marshmallows with Maple Syrup

INGREDIENTS

- 1 cup water, divided into two 1/2 cups (240g, split into 120g each)
- 3 tablespoons unflavored gelatin powder
- 1/4 cup maple syrup, about 70g (sugar, brown sugar, or honey work too)
- 1 tsp vanilla extract
- A dash of salt (optional)
- Arrowroot powder (optional, for dusting)

DIRECTIONS

1. Bloom the gelatin: pour 1/2 cup water into a mixing bowl, sprinkle the gelatin over it, and let sit. Set aside — this needs time to bloom.
2. Add the other 1/2 cup water and the maple syrup to a saucepan over medium-high heat. Bring to a rapid boil, then set a timer for 10 minutes and whisk continually the whole time.
3. Slowly pour the hot maple syrup mixture into the gelatin bowl while running a hand mixer on low speed. Once all is added, turn the mixer to high. After about a minute, add the vanilla and dash of salt. Keep mixing until the liquid turns from brown to a beige cloud — ready when a drop from the beater (or your finger) forms and holds without more dripping.
4. Work quickly: pour the mixture into a glass dish and let it sit. Once firm, sprinkle the top with arrowroot powder. Oil a knife with coconut oil to cut into squares, dusting with more arrowroot so pieces don't stick together.

Store in a closed container on the counter for 3-4 days. These don't hold up well for s'mores — they melt too quickly.
